Abstract Staphylococcus aureus is a leading cause of nosocomial infections. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of S. aureus in the hospital environment and to identify the antibiotic resistance patterns of the isolates. A total of 100 samples were collected from the hospital environment and analyzed by culture and sensitivity testing. The results showed that 60% of the samples were positive for S. aureus. The isolates were resistant to 100% of the antibiotics tested, including methicillin, vancomycin, and teicoplanin. The results of this study suggest that S. aureus is a significant cause of nosocomial infections in the hospital environment and that the isolates are highly resistant to antibiotics.
